WIPED OUT BY FIRE.

City, Ala., Destroyed

Opelika, Ala., June 14. - The business portion of Alexander City, a place of 1,500 inhabitants, was wiped away by fire, the loss reaching at least $750,000, which the insurance will not begin to covor.

The flames began in the foundry and machine works, and the long period of hot, dry weather had well prepared the buildings of the little city for the rapid spread of the flames. A light wind was blowing, and with fierce rapidity the fire spread from building to building until the entire business portion was a seething mass

The place has no water works, and all the terror-stricken people could do was to save what little they could, and then, almost prostrate, flee from the awful heat.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

He Recommends a Law Creating Reclprocity With Cuba.

Washington, June 14. - President Roosevelt sent a special message to congress, reiterating former recommendations for a law creating reciprocity with Cuba. No reference was made to Gen. Wood's appropriation of Cuban funds to circulate reciprocity literature. After quoting extracts from the previous message on the subject, the president states that Thursday he received through the American minister to Cuba an earnest appeal from President Palma for "legislative relief before it is too late and (his) country financially ruined." He says the reasons for Cuban reciprocity outweigh those for reciprocity with any other country, and are consistent with "the protective system under which this country has thriven so marvelously."

He adds: "It is to our advantage as a nation that the growing Cuban market should be controlled by American producers. The events following the war with Spain, and the prospective building of the isthmian canal, render it certain we must take in the luture a far greater interest than hitherto in what happens throughout the West Indies, Central America and the adjacent coasts and waters."

He astonished one of his customers the other day by asking him if he were not left-handed. The man admitted that he was, and suggested that the barber had probably seen him hang up his hat.

"No," said the barber; "I have other ways of finding out such things. "I see, too, that you are a bookkeeper."

"Yes," admitted the customer, "your guesses are correct. How do you know?"

"It's easy," said the barber. "In shampooing your head I noticed ink on your hair at the left temple. This ink, I concluded, must have got there from a pen resting on your left ear, which indicated that you were a person who used a pen a great deal, as a person who used a pen a great deal, as only such persons use their ears as pen-"That didn't convince me that you were

ROUGH ON MARK TWAIN.

An Englishman's Appreciation of One of Chauncey Depew's Little Jokes.

Once upon a time Senator Depew and Mark Twain were fellow passengers on a trip across the ocean. One night a dinner was given and Twain was called upon for a speech. He made a number of characteristically humons remarks and the contractions of the contraction a speech. He made a number of characteristically humorous remarks, and then sat down amid applause. Mr. Depew was next called upon, relates the Washington Post. "Mr. Clemens and I exchanged speeches before dinner," he said, "and he has delivered mine. His is so bad that I won't discrete him by repeating it." Then Mr. Degrace him by repeating it." Then Mr. Depew sat down, while everybody laughed.
The next morning, while Mr. Clemens was pacing the deck, an Englishman came up to him.

"Mr. Clemens," he said, "I always thought that Mr. Depew was a smart man, but that speech of his which you delivered last night was certainly the worst drivel I ever heard."

ASAPTURED TROOPS.

Five of the Fifth Cavalry Reported Boloed to Death.

It is Expected a General Amnesty Will Be Declared July. 1-This Will Release Filipino Prisoners on Island of Guam.

Manila, June 16 .- Friendly natives in Manila say a report is current among their countrymen that the five soldiers of the 5th cavalry who were captured by the Insurgents May 30 have been boloed to death near Teresa. in Morong province, Luzon. This report has not been confirmed by the American authorities of that district.

Twenty-five members of a band of insurgents who were captured while fighting with Gen. Lukban in Samar took the oath of allegiance to the United States and were subsequently released. Four members of the band were killed in the engagement which resulted in the capture of their companions. The 25 who have sworn allegiance have seen Gen. Chaffee and have promised to give him all the assistance in their power in the work of maintaining the present peace condltions in Samar.

A commission has been sent to Sa mar to appoint Senor Llorentes governor of the island and to establish civil government there. It is expected that a general amnesty will be declared July 1. This amnesty will result in the release of the Filipino prisoners now on the island of Guam.

The prospects in the island of Leyte for a speedy termination of the armed resistance there are bright. Since the ports of the Island were closed surrenders of insurgents to the native constabulary have occurred dally.

Gen. Davis, the commander of the American forces on the island of Mindanao, has been informed by Datto Ada that two of the three Moros who murdered an American soldier named Lewis were killed in the engagement at Bazan between Moros and Americans last May and that the other murderer has disappeared.

An American sentry belonging to the engineers was badly cut with a duty near Vicars.

Several Dattos. under the sultan of D. Baldwin, of the 27th infantry, and have asked for American flags. This action on the part of the Dattos is considered equivalent to taking the oath of allegiance to the United States.

Philadelphia, June 16.-Mrs. Racher miles west of here, by Harry N. Ricer, a panic among 100 Sunday-school chilof New Castle, Pa., who was also killed by a buliet from his revolver while struggling with another woman for possesion of the weapon. The tragedy, it is said, was the result of a quarrel. Ricer was regarded as Mrs. Sahlor's accepted suitor. Saturday night Ri cer visited the woman and they are said to have quarreled. Mrs. Sahlor ordered him from the house and she went to the home of Mrs. Mary L. Ernest to spend the night.

Sunday Ricer appeared at the house and demanded an interview with Mrs. Sahior. She declined to receive him and was dismissing him at the door when he drew a revolver from his pocket and shot her through the heart. He then, it is claimed, aimed the revolver at Mrs. Ernest, who grappled with him. During the struggle the pistol was discharged, the bullet taking effect in Ricer's head, killing him persons received shocks. almost instantly. The coroner's jury found letters in Ricer's pocket signed 'Alma" which indicated that he was engaged to be married to a young woman in Columbus, O.

Columbus, O., June 16 .- Miss Clara Alma Lowrey, sald to have been engaged to Harry N. Ricer, the murderer of Mrs. Sahlor, at Coatesville, Pa., was prostrated Sunday night when she learned of the tragedy. She said she was not engaged to Ricer, but had known him for two years and corresponded with him. She knew nothing of Mrs. Sahlor and had never heard Ricer refer to her.

WHY DORSEY REMAINED.

By Gwendolen Overton.

THERE was not much excuse for Dorsey. He had horrible warnings under his very eyes. He had, time and again, said what he thought about any American who would marry a Mexican girl. He knew quite well enough that it was a sin against common sense, which carried its own sure punishment. But he married a Mexican; and the best that can be said for him after that is that when a man, and no one, not even his wife herself, ever heard him complain. He had shaken the dice himself, and he abode by the throw.

She was pretty; he was lonelyat least he thought, then, that he was, but later on he discovered what real loneliness is, the loneliness a deux. To be sure, there were American girls in the town, but they were totally impossible, and, whatever else was to be said of Candalaria Soubieta, at least she was uncommonly wellher pretty little face.

way of making love. Candalaria had not. So Dorsey made love in the Mexican way-and to the uttermost. In his time he had scoffed at youths who would go to the opera and never look once at the stage, in order that they might nearly cut their neeks off on their high collars, twisting their heads around to gaze at a novia seated in her parents' box. He did not now. It was fleehando, a tribute to his lady, which was expected of him. He had to practice it everydral, in the portales. He had to stand on the sidewalk and talk to her or, worse yet, up to her balcony. ceptance of that. It was haciendo l'urso, and a custom of the land. Dorsey opined at first that it was a fool must see her that way or not at all.

An Old Sexton Regrets That There Is Less Dispiny of Affection Than Formerly.

An old sexton in one of the downtown burial grounds was arranging plants in the old yard where he has been for many years. Coddled a bit he talked, and this, according to the New York Sun, is part of what be said:

"It seems to me that the living of tolay are not quite so affectionate about their dead as their forefathers used to be. Leastwise they don't show it on the tombstones.

"If you will examine closely you will find on every tombstone in this yard some tender words. 'In loving remembrance of a devoted wife; 'just bcyond, 'In the blessed hope of a glorious immortality.'

"There is a tribute to every one of the dead in this yard. You will find round the corner a monument erected 'To the memory of a beloved aunt.' You see it made no difference a long time ago what the kinship was. All these stones are not in memory of a husband, or wife, or son, or daughter.

fessor Liable to Any Sort of Discipline.

Considerable seandal was caused at Marietta college recently by a prank, which resulted in the expulsion of several students. One of the professors, who was very unpopular for undergraduate reasons, had been marked out for slaughter for a long time because of his attitude toward athleties. Prof. X-, the object of the dislike, was near sighted, and at the faculty meetings he was accustomed to ereep down the long, dark stairway, feeling his way by the balustrade. It was deeided that the best thing to do was to fix the balustrade, and one night while the faculty were meeting upstairs, a thick coat of molasses was laid over the rail. As a result the near-sighted professor met with an unpleasant surprise when he tried to feel his way downstairs in the dark. The next day a rigid investigation was held. The suspected students were assembled in a room and warned that confession was the only escape from expulsion. Thus admonished, an appeal was made to any one who knew anything about the trick to confess, says the New York Tribune.

One of the culprits rose and said, hesitatingly: "I don't know as I should say any thing about this, but I guess I had better make a clean breast of it. I do know some one who had a hand in it." He paused, as if afraid to continue, while his companions in crime looked at him in amazement.

"Well, who was it?" demanded the college inquisitor, sharply. "Prof. X---."

Out in the workroom the red-headed printer had been doing some peculiar things. The moment Guy had left he had thrust the brush end of a broom out through the open window; then, on the reverse side of an old piece of copy, be had written the following:

"Guy Herbert, son of the late Montfort Herbert, arrived in Concord at just left the old man. He's going over to the town meeting to-night to get some pointers. Watch out for him. He's about twenty-two or three, five feet eleven or possibly six feet tall, dark hair and mustache, and looks as though he was built for business."

That was all. The printer neither addressed the note nor signed it, and the

The printer made haste to answer the knock. A man stood outside at the head of the rear stairway-a strapping big fellow with his trousers tucked in his boot tops. He and the printer exchanged winks as the scrap of paper was handed over. Then the big fellow noiselessly descended and the printer noiselessly closed the door and removed the broom from the window.

That "leak" was through the stovepipe hole in the Blizzard office.

CHAPTER II. IN THE HOSTILE CAMP.

Guy had four hours and a half at his disposal before the freight train left looked. Concord, and he made up his mind that office, he lingered at the top to scan down. pied by the newspaper was well at the charm of womanly resolution and foot of the main thoroughfare, nearly young man's eye. Certainly no eulogies were to be wasted upon that collection of houses and stores. The principal street had roads debouching to left and right. Buildings were not huddled together; on the contrary, they were far apart, with stretches of virgin prairie between them. It had been the policy of the Townsite company to donate a lot in each block in the residence portion to any one who would build a house upon it. For this reason, nearly every dwelling had a block to itself. Main street began at the Northern Pacific depot and ran south for half a mile beyond the Blizzard building, the latter closing up the ragged file of store structures. Just south of the depot was a huge, barn-like hotel. The botel, be it observed, always formed the nucleus of the "boom" town. Across from the hotel was the office of a real estate agent; south of that, on the same side, was a building erected by the Townsite company for a bank; then there was a drug store and then Mr. Benjamin Glimmer's Emporium, and then a livery stable, the latter almost opposite the Blizzard building. Between the latter and the hotel was the new courthouse.

As Guy gave further attention to the courthouse he saw something which had before escaped him, namely, a weather vane. This vane was cut into the profile of a man's head, hand before the face, thumb to the nose and digits outspread. The head looked steadily and insolently westward and refused to move with the northwest wind. Guy's anger arose at the sight. He had no idea what such a vane might mean, but he would tolerate nothing of that kind in his town. That vane was to come down in a very short time, even if he had to remove it himself.

Descending the stairs he went over to the Emporium and introduced himself to the proprietor. Mr.-Glimmer was a slender man of sallow complexion and looked at the world through iron-framed spectacles. He was glad to meet Guy and presented him to sevetal citizens; among others, Elisha McQuilkin, the postmaster, Lemucl Bilkins, a youth of harmless aspect, whose abnormally long and spider-like legs were the standing joke of the town; Christopher Waffle, justice of the peace and proprietor of a threshing outfit, and Bill Comfort, who operated Judge Waffle's engine. Conversation with these gentlemen revealed such a depth of animosity and bitterness over the county-scat question that Guy was surprised.

"The Harmon; folks have threatened to come dov : on us like Assyri- her glove, and then seated herself on ans on the fold and run off with the one of the side seats just where the county records," observed Mr Glim- last flicker of sunlight touched her

"And every citizen will bring a gun," snapped Waffle.

"And use it if necessary," thundered McQuilkin.

Coming from the fairly peaceable confines of Chicago this warlike language filled Guy with considerable apprehension. It likewise gave him a realizing sense of the danger of the mission he was about to undertake. If the Harmony people were aroused in a similar degree, to be discovered taking notes at their town meeting would mean-Guy refrained from following out this train of thought. He did not care to anticipate the disaster which would probably befall him in case of discovery. Truth to tell, this work was being entered upon against the counsel of his honor. In love and war, however, all means are supposed to be fair and he was endeavoring to apply that principle to the present case. Nevertheless he was troubled.

The 6:30 o'clock freight had a few cases of merchandise for Concord and while these were being unloaded Guy climbed into the caboose on the rear of the train.

"I've counted as many as three people, father," broke upon Guy's ears in a feminine voice that was richly musical.

"One of those is the station agent, Betty, and doesn't count," replied a voice of masculine timbre, so deep it was almost a roar.

Guy discovered the second speaker instantly. He was a large man wearing a black slouch hat and was sitting on a seat that ran along the side of noon and at this hour-two p. m .- has | the car, his eyes close to a window and eagerly observing the town.

The other speaker was not so easily located, but Guy found her at last. She was perched on a stool up in the "lookout." or cupola, and was also

"Huh!" exclaimed the father, without looking around. "Keever is the biggest cipher in the whole lay-out.

"I can't understand," went on the girl, "why more people haven't come down to see that the train arrives and departs properly."

"Pardon me," put in Guy, whimsically, halting below the young lady and looking up at her, "the people here do not manifest the same interest in a freight that they do in a passenger. Besides, there are two men and a dog behind the depot whom you have over-

Undoubtedly she was grateful, but she did not show it. Her face was in a flame as Guy released her, and her white teeth closed bitingly on her red under lip.

"Jupiter, but that was neatly done!" exclaimed the large man, heartily. "Betty, why don't you thank him? That drop might have hurt you, my girl." "Had he not attracted my attention," flared Miss Betty, "I would not have lost my hold. These freight trains are simply insufferable and this is the very last time I shall ever Guy was annoyed, especially as Miss Betty's sense of the ridiculous prevailed over all and allowed a smile to twitch at the corners of her month.

"You are mistaken, sir," said Guy. I am not a drummer." "Been long in Concord?"

young man."

"A few hours only." "That was as long as you could stand it, I suppose. Well, I don't blame you. If you want to make a little money during this boom you've got to buy lots in a live town like Harmony. My name's Vlandingham,

Guy had been on the point of saying that he already had more lots than he knew what to do with, but the large man's announcement of his name caused him to take another course. Here undoubtedly was the very Vlandingham who had the county commissioners under his thumb and was the ringleader of the conspiracy to steal the county seat away from Concord. Guy became wary on the instant.

"My name is Herbert, Mr. Vlandingham," said be. "I am going over to have a look at Harmony." "Mr. Herbert, my daughter, Miss Elizabeth Vlandingham." The easy familiarity of the northwest had long since claimed Wilbur Vlandingham for its own and he presented the stranger to his daughter with a cheerful disregard of the proprieties. , But if he forgot himself Miss Betty was far from being ruled by his example. To Guy's profound bow she returned only the curtest of nods, two little wrinkles between studying the main street with eager her brows showing her disapproval of her father's actions. Mr. Vlandingham smiled and winked again. "Harmony." he resumed, "is my town, Mr. Herbert. "Our town," corrected Miss Betty. "Certainly, my love," deferred her father; "whatever is mine will some day be yours." He turned once more to Guy. "Harmony is going to have Everybody will know that one of these the county seat, Mr. Herbert, and the moment the result of this special election is known lots will go up with a jump." Leaning sidewise confidentially he tapped Guy on the knee. "Take my advice. Buy a few lots now before the rise."

"I'll have to think about it," said Guy. "Of course; and while you are thinking about it you are to accept the hospitality of my humble home. Miss Betty shot a quick glance of protest in her father's direction. "Really, Mr. Vlandingham," answered Guy, I couldn't think of such a thing." It was one thing to prevent his fortunes being wrecked by reconnoitering the enemy, but it is quite another thing to sit at table with the general of the hostile camp and carry the espial into his very household. Guy drew a line at that. "Nonsense!" cried Vlandingham. "I won't have it any other way. You're going with me and I won't take no for an answer." "It is impossible," returned Guy, firmly. "By Jupiter, we'll see about that. In my own town-beg pardon, Betty, our own town-things go about as Ias we-want them to go.'

"I appreciate your kindness," said Guy, embarrassed by the persistent nature of Vlandingham's hospitality. 'but I cannot impose upon you.'

"Impose! Hear that, Betty? He talks of imposing on me-on us-after saving your life, my girl! Think of how you would now be lying crushed and broken on that car floor but for his he has interfered successfully with anheroic assistance! Jupiter! Mr. Herbert, I owe you a debt of gratitude. Miss Betty had a delightfully contrary nature. Had Guy accepted her father's hospitality she would have been set against him; but now that he had determined not to accept, she was equally determined that he should.

"Mr. Herbert," she went on, "allow me to second my father's invitation. We shall be glad to have you stay at Willowview while you are in Harmony."

The witchery of her blue eyes made the temptation a powerful one, yet Guy shook his head. Then the blue eyes grew imperious.

A SPINNING GHOST.

Upon Investigation Proved to Be Rat Enjoying a Run Around the Wheel.

On the post road in southern New Hampshire stands an old house which was once famous for its ghosh It had been a tavern, owned and managed by two brothers and two sisters named Mason, relates the Youth's Companion.

The youngest of the family, Hannah, had been jilted in her youth. After her desertion she never entered any door save that of her own home, but gave all her strength to hard work. She would hatchel flax for weeks, spin unceasingly and weave on a hand loom, without apparently a thought of rest.

She died after a short illness, and still travelers said that their slumbers were disturbed by the whir of the wheel. Soon it was whispered about that the Mason house, was haunted. Strange sounds were heard from the garret where Hannah had always worked, and plainest of all was the hum of the great wool wheel.

The brothers heard the story, and at once set out to solve the mystery. Joseph went to the garret and watched. After a time the wheel began to revolve. He struck a light. On the rim of the wheel was a great rat, running around.

Frequent visits to the garret rendered this rat so tame that he would come out on the spinning wheel by daylight, and several others were occasionally seen to take a spin in the wheel, as if it were a pleasant recre-

A PRINCE'S EDUCATION.

One Thing That Little Edward of York Rebelled Against But Had to Learn.

The present idol of the British public is Prince Edward of York, eldest son of the duke of York, grandson of the prince of Wales, great-grandson of Queen Victoria, and heir in the direct line of the crown of Great Britain. Prince Edward, having been born on June 23, 1894, is now well into his sixth year, and regards himself as quite a big boy, says Youth's Companion.

His brother Albert is a year younger, and the two princes have had, perhaps, | LARD-Steam their share, but no more, of brotherly "scraps." The duke of York is said not to have interfered with their small not to have interfered with their small wars, saying that to "let them fight it out will make them better men." It is customary for the royal children, in meeting the queen, to kiss her hand and not her cheek; but Prince Guy was overwhelmed. Miss Betty Edward did not like to do this, and obbowed her head and her shoulders jected strenuously. One day he heard some one speak of "her majesty."

"I know who 'her majesty' is," said cried Vlandingham. "She understands he: "it's just granny!"

"And who was the naughty little prince who would not kiss granny's

"That was me," said Prince Edward, unabashed, "and I'm not going to kise granny's hand!"

But when he had arrived at the age of five he felt himself quite a man, and began to do as other men did-kissed the queen's hand and always doffed his cap in her presence.

Sweetly Innocent.

The ten-year-old daughter of a portly lady scenied overjoyed when her mother promised to take her to a concert on the following evening, and rushing off to her little writing desk produced a dainty diary and made & few notes in it.

"I should dearly like to see what the darling girl has confided to her diary," said the mother to her husband, when the child had gone to bed. "What do you think?"

"Oh, read it by all means, ' he answered. "It's sure to be something sweetly innocent." So the portly lady, not without a

These atmospheric poisons are breathed into the lungs and taken up by the blood, and the foundation of some long, debilitating illness is laid. Chills and fever, chronic dyspepsia, torpid and enlarged liver, kidney troubles, jaundice and biliousness are frequently due to that invisible foe, Malaria. Noxious gases and unhealthy matter collect in the system because the liver and kidneys fail to act, and are poured into the blood current until it becomes so polluted and sluggish that the poisons literally break through the skin, and carbuncles, boils, abscesses, ulcers and various eruptions of an indolent character appear, depleting the system, and threatening life itself.

The germs and poisons that so oppress and weaken the body and destroy the life-giving properties of the blood, rendering it thin and watery, must be overcome and carried out of the system before the patient can hope to get rid of Malaria and its effects.
